

Easing of tax burdens is sought

By CARROLL WILSON

A petition asking the city, county and school district governing boards to grant $3000 tax exemptions to residents 65 years of age or older for their homesteads is being circulated in Canyon and will be presented to the governmental units in the near future.

A Canyon woman who says she's well acquainted with the trials of trying to make ends meet on a fixed income, Mrs. Lena Seay of 1701 Third Ave., is circulating the petitions on foot.

Mrs. Seay, who says she's well over 70 years of age, went from shop to shop in downtown Canyon Thursday and Friday seeking signatures on her petition.

With more than 300 signatures, gathered not necessarily from local senior citizens, Mrs. Seay says she will collect more before presenting the petitions to the city commission, county commissioners and the school board.

City commissioners have indicated they may be willing to grant the $3000 tax exemption for senior citizens. School board members have indicated they will not, and county commissioners have taken no action and have given no indication.

"We the undersigned petition the city of Canyon, Randall County and the Canyon School District to allow not less than the $3000 tax exemption of the assessed taxable value on the homesteads of persons 65 and older from all ad valorem taxes thereafter levied by the governmental units," the petition says.

A Canyon businesswoman who drew up the petition said a mandatory retirement age of 65 and inflation in the economy have made it difficult for senior citizens on fixed incomes to live.

The petition asks that the tax exemption be granted beginning in 1973.

"When people reach the age of 65 and they've been good citizens, they need a release from the responsibility of worrying about these taxes," the businesswoman said. "We have the opinion in Canyon that this is such an affluent community. Well, it is based on per capita figures.

"But, which per capita? There are many here who are just living on social security checks and they can't make it."

The businesswoman said the petition is designed simply to express to the local governments that people in the city are concerned about the granting of the exemption.

"I hope this will spur either voluntary effort or an election," she said. "It is to show there is a need and people do need this exemption and to make the governmental leaders a little more aware of the actual facts of our community."

Mrs. Seay explained some of her problems of living on a fixed income.

"Son," she said, "I don't have any income except a little rent house."

"I get a $15 state check and a $112.40 social security check and by the time I've made a house payment, paid the utility bills and my hospitalization I have $4.07 to live on for the rest of the month."

More Canyon Days plans set

Scanning the colorful jam-boree of events lined up for Canyon Days, scheduled June 29-July 4, almost anybody will be able to find something he can eat, watch, buy or enter.

For the joiner, the cavalcade of activities include bicycle racing, bicycle decorating, a softball tournament and other events. For the more sedentary, there'll be contests ranging from tobacco-spitting to mustache-grooming.

And if one doesn't want to get in the act himself, he can get his pet in on the action.

Things get under way at 8 p.m. Friday evening when the gun sounds to start off the Eighth Annual World Championship Pony Express Race in the Randall County Sheriff's Posse Rodeo Arena, two miles south of Canyon off the Lubbock Highway.

According to Posse member Jimmy Plain, only the most swift and skilled enter the stiff competition of the race, which was originated in Canyon eight years ago.

Engaging in the feats of derring-do this summer will be 14 teams from Texas and Oklahoma, including two from Durant, Okla., and teams from Johnson County and Caney Oklahoma. Texas entries include 10 member teams from Alvarado, Lewisville, Saginaw, Lubbock, Floydada, and two from Plainview. Also, the current world champion team from Crowley will be racing.

Each team has eight riders and two alternates. Plain expects about 400 people and 140 horses will be in town for the goings-on.

At stake is a $1,000 prize to the winner, $600 for second place, $400 for third place. The competition is organized in round-robin brackets, with the team winning the most races taking the top prize.

Action will continue at 8 a.m. Saturday.

Saturday, June 30, will open with a parade at 11 a.m. which will begin at 14th St. and Fourth Avenue and wind up at Conner Park. According to parade coordinators Cordell Huddleston and Gene Glazener, the year's new attractions will include the Khiva Club of Amarillo Motorcycle Corps and Clowns.

About 25 entries are included in the parade, they added. Conner Park will be buzzing with activity Saturday. Randall County Judge Woody Pond is in charge of an old-fashioned barbeque, with meals priced at $1.50 for adults and $1 for children.

For the more adventurous, Boy Scout Troop 31 will be selling buffalo burgers at 50 cents apiece. Scouts will be going around Canyon this week selling 90 cent coupons that entitle buyers to a burger, a Pepsi and fries, according to scoutmaster Shug Bonds.

Also in the park will be athletic demonstrations by youngsters involved in the Canyon Summer Recreation Program, including gymnastic displays, three-legged competitions, tumbling and other feats.

The Canyon News will offer a prize to the best tobacco-spitter. Crack spitter Weyman Brown is expected to be present to defend his title of champion in this contest.

The Women's Division of the Chamber of Commerce will offer an award to the menfolk who can grow the best mustache. Categories include best one week's growth, two-weeks, perennials and others.

The Canyon Fire Department will sponsor the bicycle-decorating contest, and the Canyon Police Department will conduct the bicycle-racing events.

The Rotary Club will host a pet show, as well as a flea market on the Courthouse Square. Rotarians claim that "you name it, we got it," including antiques, junkies and other wares.

The Kiwanis Club will conduct the baseball tournament, open to any would-be Canyon Yogi Berras, as well as an all-star game featuring the top players on their boys teams, the time to be announced.

Things calm down on the following days, and then explode Wednesday night with a spectacular Fourth of July fireworks display in Conner Park. H. R. Fulton, the man who has lit the match under the rockets "ever since we've been having the displays," reported that several new and exciting aerial shells are promised for the evening's entertainment, which begins at nightfall.

Vicki McCormick plays Kate and Jerry Williams plays Tuck Yellidell, two roles portrayed beginning Thursday night in the musical-drama "TEXAS," a production in Palo Duro Canyon through the summer months. See story on page 7.

16 courses due offering in area cities by WTSU

As many as 16 sections in five subject areas could be taught in 12 Panhandle cities starting next fall through West Texas State University's newly activated continuing education division.

Dr. Emmitt Smith, director of continuing education, said last week he has plans in the mill now for the offering of 16 sections in education, business, nursing, biology and industrial education in towns throughout the area.

The courses must be approved for offering by the Coordinating Board, Texas Colleges and Universities System, he said, before definite finalized plans can be made.

Courses are tentatively planned for offering in Dumas, Pampa, Borger, Plainview, Stunnett, Levelland, Canadian, Tulia, Hereford, Lubbock, Pantex and Booker.

Smith said the university hopes for word on approval of the courses by the Coordinating Board by mid July.

All courses planned will be for credit and although they will be taught off-campus literally students will be given resident credit upon completion.

Smith said the university began offering off-campus resident credit courses at the graduate level last spring when courses were taught in Dumas, Pampa and Perryton on an experimental basis.

"Those worked out fine," he said. "The only problem we made a late decision to try them and ran into some registration problems. This time we can foresee and eliminate."

The spring course offerings in the three towns plus an additional graduate English offering in Amarillo attracted 127 students.

Smith said plans have not been made on how the courses in the outlying communities will be taught. He said the university has two alternatives.

One is to send a professor to the town. The other is to select a qualified instructor from the town to teach the course.

Students involved in the fall offerings may also be students on the WTSU campus here. They must simply enroll for both resident on-campus and resident off-campus courses at the same registration time.

Charge for a standard 3-hour course is $55.

Smith said the 16 possible offerings next fall are only a part of the continuing education program planned.

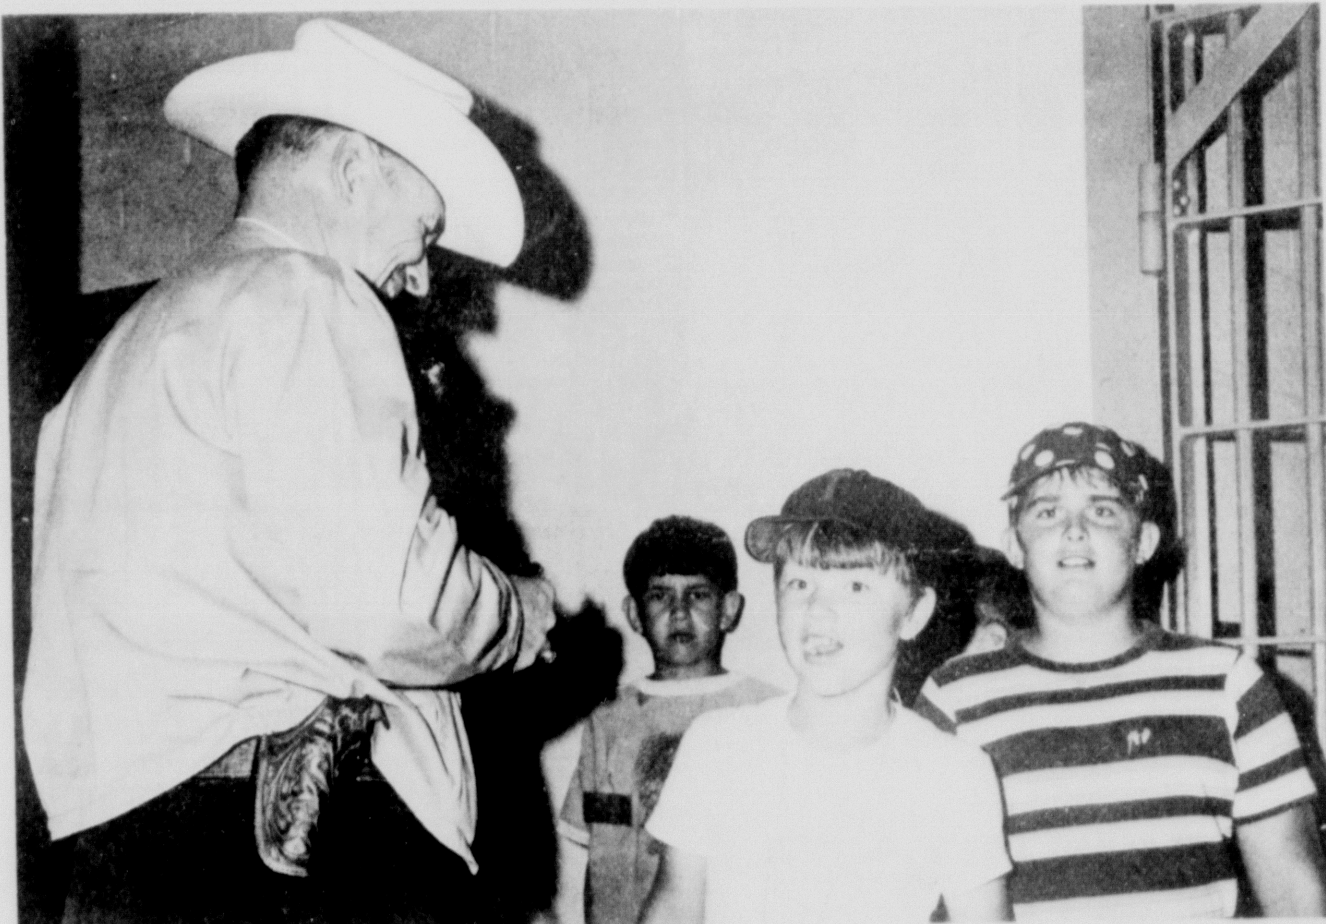

"Ultimately there will be three kinds of offerings," he said. "The one we've talked about and other non-credit educational services. This could include a day conference to a two-week workshop, that do not carry credit."

The third category is also non-credit but it carries what we call a continuing education unit (CEU)."

Smith said the offerings in the off-campus resident credit program next fall were decided on after the deans of the university's various colleges and schools surveyed the needs of the Panhandle area.

No laughing matter for some

'Prisoners' learn of conflict in jail

Sheriff Cliff Longest releases his "prisoners," a group of day campers in the ecumenical vacation church school. The group was placed in jail on a charge of unlawful assembly to illustrate a point their teachers were making on cooperation and conflict.

Skirted future for male ROTC

Traditionally all-male Army ROTC at West Texas State University will go fully coeducational next fall.

ROTC officials here received word last week that the Army has opened ROTC on all college campuses to women, who can now receive full credit for ROTC classes and even receive commissions as second lieutenants after completion of their college educations.

Maj. William Ritchie of the WTSU ROTC detachment said next fall military science courses on the freshman and sophomore levels will be open to women students.

Male students in the past and now they and their female counterparts will be taking courses such as land navigation, American military history and marksmanship.

Ritchie said the female students will not be issued weapons and will not be expected to perform during weekly drill sessions with rifles.

In the past at West Texas, a sprinkling of female students have chosen to take ROTC, Ritchie said, primarily just for their own edification. Now enrollment is for real.

He said the new program has been tested in 10 universities across the nation.

Within the next three years, the advanced level coursework of military science will be offered the females. It is during the advanced level that the students are under contract with the Army and receive $100 per month

(See ROTC, page 10)

More than 25 Canyon youngsters and their teachers were jailed Thursday afternoon by Randall County sheriff's deputies for unlawful assembly.

It was all a hoax, but the youngsters didn't know it.

The youngsters spent just time enough to realize they never want to be behind bars again. And, that was part of the purpose of the put-up arrest.

The youngsters were participants in the Canyon ecumenical vacation church school day camp for 5th and 6th graders sponsored by several Canyon churches.

They had just returned from a long day at Palo Duro Canyon, where the camp was held last week, and were unloading cars at the First Presbyterian Church when Sheriff Cliff Longest and Deputy Harold Hooks arrived.

"You all are under arrest," Longest announced as he walked from his car. "I'm afraid I'm going to have to take you in for unlawful assembly."

The initial reaction of the youngsters was to laugh and shrug Longest's threat off as a joke.

The reaction changed when Longest and Hooks placed the children and their teachers in cars and headed back to the courthouse.

The youngsters were ushered up the elevator a group at a time and placed in a large cell in the jail after an admonition from Longest that they could make one phone call if they had a dime.

bids will be let on the construction by mid or late July and construction should begin shortly thereafter.

Construction is expected to take about a year and Grimes said he hopes the hospital can be open by fall of 1974.

Our World

Constructive Criticism Essential

By ANN BROWN
People may love or despise you—not necessarily for what you are, but for the way you make them feel when they are with you. Think of the friend whose companionship you enjoy most. He may have more faults than you do, but he treasures your friendship, and makes you feel you are of value to him and to society. One of the reasons adults enjoy little children is that compared to a child, almost any adult is a fountain of knowledge, wisdom, and strength. Self esteem is essential to emotional health. There is no more effective way to destroy one's self esteem than to point out all the unpleasant truths about his personality and performance. Only one perfect man ever lived on this earth. And critics managed to hurl some unpleasant facts into his dying face: "He saved others; Himself He cannot save." All of us have been victims of unpleasant circumstances we prefer to forget. And we have flaws in our personalities of which we are painfully aware.

Having them pointed out never increases our self esteem, and seldom endears the critics to us. Truth, however, is essential. Civilization cannot survive without it. But it should come objectively from teachers, preachers, counselors, news reporters, statesmen, et cetera. Truth is seldom appreciated when it comes subjectively from friends or relatives. The last person one can accept unpleasant truths from is a husband or wife. The very fact that it is true is usually sufficient reason not to say it. Constructive criticism is essential to character development, human relations, and the acquisition of wisdom and knowledge. But its value depends more on its source than its worth. A hurt smile from a beloved companion can be more conducive to a change in conduct than a detailed recitation of one's shortcomings. A reproving glance from a respected parent is more beneficial to a child than a sound, philosophical lecture from a parent whose example does not coincide with his good counsel.

Any advice or reproof from parents or companion that cannot be delivered in kindness and compassion is likely to do more harm than good. Anger does not convey love. Little children want to think their parents are perfect. And good parents seldom see flaws in their babies. But as little ones grow up, the first wedge between parent and child is usually an admonition inconsistent with parental example. Few people are willing to buy anything until they have seen a sample. The same applies to husbands and wives. Declarations of love are useless if no illustrations are available. As the Chinese philosopher said, "One picture is worth a thousand words." The wife who annoys her husband by constantly asking if he loves her, would never think to ask if he demonstrated his love through sufficient concern for her comfort, welfare, and happiness. And it would never occur to a child to feel unloved or rejected if the parents manifested more concern for his happiness than for their own. Almost everyone wants to make his family happy, and be of service to the world—provided it does not require any sacrifice on his part. Service without sacrifice, however, is yet to be discovered. Anytime we increase the self esteem of another, we add to his admiration for us. When we cut him down, we diminish our own image in his eyes. It is difficult to change ourselves. But when we find value in others, they usually find us of value—just the way we are.

Postal Exams To Be Given For Applicants

Applications are now being accepted for an examination to establish a register from which future clerks and carrier vacancies will be filled at the Canyon Post Office. Postmaster Lee Roy Moreland said applications must be received before June 28. Examination date will be announced later. General age requirement for potential examinees is 18 years of age or 16 years of age for high school graduates. There is no maximum age limit. Applications for the exams may be obtained from Moreland at the local Post Office.

City Student Takes Honors, Degree In Colo.

The son of a Canyon woman has earned his bachelor of science degree in civil engineering from the University of Denver. Gene W. Myers, son of Lula V. Johnson of Canyon, received numerous honors before taking his degree during recent commencement exercises. Myers received the Colorado Engineering Council's Silver Medal Award as the outstanding senior engineering student of the five engineering schools in Colorado. Myers will soon leave for Ponce, Puerto Rico for a study of the language and customs of Honduras where he will spend two years with the Peace Corps as a civil engineer.

City Desk A Matter Of Money

By CARROLL WILSON
It has become almost trite to speak of the problems of the elderly in this nation. Trite because when something becomes trite it is generally ignored, it doesn't spark interest, it's not a catchy thing. Most Americans are oblivious in this mobil society of ours to the problems of those who are living on fixed incomes in the retirement years. Fixed incomes because many of them receive only social security checks. In times of high inflation, it is difficult for these people with fixed incomes to adjust. They must simply do without many of the things they need and must have—drugs, medical attention, good food. The constitutional amendment passed by Texas voters last fall which allows those persons over 65 years of age a tax exemption of $3000 on their homesteads is just a small effort to help out our senior citizens. It is good that local governmental units have the option of granting the exemption. But, it is too bad when a governmental unit which can afford to does not grant the exemption. It is also too bad when a public body, which is responsible to the public, takes the attitude that a portion of that public be damned. That's the attitude Dr. Dudley Moore expressed when he spoke against granting the exemption because "most of them can afford to pay taxes." What about the segment which cannot? It is erroneous to draw a parallel between the older over 65 and the youngster under 25 and just married. The older is very likely tired, he's retired, his family's grown and left him and he's simply not the same man he was at 25. The youngster is enthusiastic, he's probably hard working, he's facing life anew. He has the flexibility and the spunk to attack life and its adversities. He can adjust to change and he can probably afford to pay what little tax he owes. The older probably owns a home. The youngster does not in all probability. And, that makes a vast difference in taxes. Canyon's school board must remember that its responsibility is not just to the children of the school district. Its responsibility is to the taxpayers as well and when a segment of the taxpaying public is bleeding to death through taxation a little relief is in order. The school district might even consider granting the exemption as returning a service to some folks who for years have made Canyon schools the best in the Panhandle and now simply cannot afford to contribute 100 per cent any longer.

There's a rumour traveling hot and heavy which says that there's a movement afoot to bring several universities in the West Texas area under one board of regents. It has been mentioned that possibly WTSU and Texas Tech would be involved. A check with the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System last week squelched the rumour. A spokesman for the board said no proposal has been presented the board for such a super board of regents. No study is underway, either, for such a move. Some legislators, however, were apparently interested in the possibility last spring down in Austin. A bill was introduced to create one board of regents for several South Texas universities. And, a resolution was presented calling for a study of combining boards for several schools in South and West Texas. The bill and the resolution were defeated. That does not mean that such a proposal might not be made in the future. With the pinch in finances for smaller schools in the state, it is likely that such a proposal will be made. Several schools working together under one board have more lobbying power in Austin, to be realistic about it. Right now, that's the only advantage I can see to the system.

Arts And Entertainment Through The Looking - Glass

By ANN MELIN

In writing this column, I had the audacity to "borrow" the title of Lewis Carroll's beloved tale of Alice's adventures in a topsy-turvy world. It was an obvious choice since art is supposed to be the mirror of life. If the arts of today seem to be throwing back a distorted image of ourselves — an image even more outrageous in many cases than all the Victorian mathematician's Mad Hatters and Cheshire cats — then the inference has to be (if, indeed, mirrors never lie) that something has gone awry in 20th Century life.

Let us, like Alice, slip through the looking glass of art and meet some of these distorted selves.

MUSIC

A couple of years ago, the rock music world became obsessed with the idea of the superstar, a dynamic leader with uncanny ability borne of personal magnetism to attract a mass following.

The first of this genre was a rock opera, "Tommy" which actually was performed at the Metropolitan Opera. The hero of the piece, or, better, the antihero, was a deaf, dumb and blind boy who initiated a mass movement among young people. The slavish followers had all the fanaticism and ascetic dedication of any zealots, but their zeal was directed toward Tommy's strange gospel involving a kind of priesthood of pinball players. That's right, pinball.

A British duo took up the superstar idea later and came up with another operatic-type work, "Jesus Christ Superstar," which stirred the entire religious community both favorably and unfavorably. Jesus became in this work a messianic personality that took the stolid Hebraic community by storm.

The reverence that went into, say, Handel's "Messiah" was lacking in "Superstar," but the awe was still there, and beautifully conveyed in such songs as Mary Magdalene's bewildered lament, "I Don't Know How to Love Him."

People who thought this work was another heretical sign of the times missed the point. The idea of tailoring Jesus' character to suit the times is as old as the hills. During the heyday of big business in the 1920's, Bruce Barton wrote a smash best seller that depicted Jesus as a genius of the hot sell, his messages far more effective than any jingles and slogans that soft drink and chewing gum concerns could ever think up.

At one time, people began to think that Jesus the Gentle Savior was too sissified an image. Evangelist Billy Sunday went to work on that, and in his sermons and writings, Jesus became a pugilistic "scrapper" instead of "an effeminate proposition of a man."

Along with "Jesus Christ Superstar," came the Jesus freak movement with its buttons, tee-shirts and bumper stickers extolling the name of their Hero. The movement has waned a bit now, but a current hit tune, "Jesus is Just a Wonderful With Me" still bears evidence that the movement is still a going concern.

Families Entertain Okla. House Guests

Mr. and Mrs. Milford Wheeler, Debbie and Brian, Woodward, Okla., were guests last week in the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Winters, Mike and Ricky, SE of Amarillo, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Winters, SE of Amarillo, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Winters, Beverly and Robert, Wildorado, Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Clark and family, Amarillo.

Mrs. Clarence Winters is the aunt of Milford Wheeler and Mrs. O. R. Clark is the sister of Mrs. Milford Wheeler.

Of late, the pop music world has been trying to revive the country-western idiom. One local rock musician reported that when his group played Amarillo, Lubbock and other cities, the kids all demanded C&W. He added that when they played the small Panhandle town circuit, the kids scoffed at that fare and said they didn't want "any of that goat rosin' stuff."

Here's a real upside down situation. Young people demanding "downhome" music whose own homes are split-levels in suburbia and whose predilections are more toward McDonald's hamburgers than mom's fried chicken and blackeyed peas.

This confusion created an unusual situation in Amarillo not long ago. A young musician sporting shoulder-length hair became a prime attraction for both the Amarillo "hip" set as well as area farmers and ranchers for his facility in playing that old Bluegrass music on a fiddle. Whole families consisting of mom, dad and the kids would show up on weekends in the little C&W dive to hear the boy play, in some cases coming from as far away as Hereford. And if you were really "in" among the Amarillo long-hair set, you had to show up nightly to tap your feet and clap your hands to "San Antonio Rose."

I doubt not that the enjoyment derived from hearing this fare was quite sincere for those steeped in the life of small Texas town life. But for urban youth, I feel the whole C&W craze is hopelessly contrived. I say this because people's tastes in music are based on their own life situations. When Jimmie Rodgers sadly sang that he was "tired of the big city lights" and wistfully dreamed of going back to the country, he was singing of things of which he painfully knew. The kids in suburbia most of the time have as much knowledge of country bliss as they do know-how for milking cows and busting broncos.

Most C&W is nostalgic. That means, more or less, homesickness, remorse over the loss of something once known. Kids today are nostalgic, yes, or they wouldn't listen to C&W. But the sad thing is, they're nostalgic for something they've never known. If they're looking for some surcease of this undefinable sense of loss, they won't find it in C&W. They can't look to country-bred Jimmie Rodgers and Hank Williams to provide the answers. They must develop their own special brand of music. They haven't done it yet.

Here we have two musical trends, both indicative of the same malady affecting the children of the 60's and 70's. Their penchant for superstars, for dynamic musical gurus, comes from a deep desire for someone to show them the way, to give them an identity and a mission in an impersonal, dizzily changing world that offers no hope to them for stability. Their masquerade of rustic music and country ways stems from the same reaching out for something of endurance.

False prophets reach out and play on their fears. Witness the overnight stardom of the male singer who took for himself and his band a girl's name, the same as Lewis Carroll's make-believe character — Alice. Alice Cooper made a recent appearance in Amarillo and convinced many traditionalists that Armageddon may be near.

The wild-eyed singer, the son of a preacher, often sports women's clothes and makeup, and his performance is a violent parody of anger, obscenity and violence. During his act, he rips up dolls that squirt fake blood around the stage, or makes use of chickens, in which case the blood is the real thing.

Playing to a jam-packed auditorium in Amarillo (kids showed up hours before performance time to get seats), he invited the audience to make verbal assaults on him, an invitation that the area's young people accepted with relish and performed with a good deal of vituperative zeal. It was Alice's demonic way of letting these poor, identity-seeking kids assert themselves. And during that concert, Alice had captured and captivated the young people as well as any superstar can. He was reaching out a macabre, braceleted arm to pull them into the looking glass.

Meanwhile, those four Liverpudlian lads who took the world by storm in the early 60's have broken up. Once people thought the Beatles were a threat to young people. Now no university music prof will dare slight their music, which is standard repertoire in school bands and orchestras. Beatle Paul McCartney is still composing and singing music, which has taken on a hauntingly lovely and serene tone. There are still some diehards, though. Like my mother, who adamantly refuses to believe that the long-haired singer composed that beautiful, wistful tune, "Yesterday." And so, the beat goes on.

(Next week, a look at the cinematic arts in an attempt to answer the befuddling question, "Pornography or Art?")

Donald F. Lloyd, executive director of the Randall County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, was awarded a certificate for high quality performance in his job by the district office. Presenting the citation was Charles Wayne Mayfield, district director of ASCS.

WT Singers Meet Success In Caribbean

West Texas State University's New Day Singers are apparently making a hit on their tour of the Caribbean sponsored by the USO.

A report from the U.S. Army School of the Americas indicates the singers, WTSU students directed by Dr. Hugh Sanders, met with success in appearing before an exclusively Latin American audience which spoke no English.

"From the opening to the last encore, the men showed their enthusiasm by thunderous, continuing applause after each number," according to an Army spokesman.

Mary T. Hullinghorst (right), national field representative for the Community Concerts Association, flew in from New York this week to consult with board members of the association about this year's membership campaign. Pictured above with Mrs. Hullinghorst are Mrs. Joe Findley, membership chairman, and Dr. John J. Alpar of Amarillo, association president. Mrs. Findley announced that a world-renown ballet dancer and his troupe will be among the year's concert offerings.

Mayor J. Manly Bryan signs a proclamation urging local residents to have been for Father's Day today. Mrs. Nolon Henson of the Golden Spread CowBelles presented the proclamation last week for his signature.

Beef Serving Urged Here

Mayor J. Manly Bryan signed a proclamation Friday urging Canyon residents to use beef for Father's Day.

Bryan signed the proclamation which was presented by Mrs. Nolon Henson on behalf of the Golden Spread Cow Belles, a beef-oriented women's organization.

"The beef industry has been established as one of the most important segments of the economy of Canyon, Texas," the proclamation reads. "Father's Day (today) is an appropriate time to honor the beef industry and its great contribution to the strength and welfare of our state and nation."

Mrs. Henson said this is the first year the Cow Belles have been in existence in Texas and thus this is the first year beef use for Father's Day has been urged by the group.

In addition to the proclamation, the Cow Belles in the area have promoted the use of beef today and urge all housewives to serve beef.

Leslie Davis, Tracy Byrd, Charles Morgan and Brent May, all of Canyon and members of Boy Scout Troop 31, are practicing canoeing drills at Camp Don Harrington, just one of many activities on the curriculum.

Troop 31 Attends Session At Camp

With camping activities in full swing, 16 active members of Boy Scout Troop 31 attended Camp Don Harrington last week.

The session began Sunday and ended Saturday. The boys, ranging from age 11 to age 13, were involved in activities including swimming, rowing, live saving and canoeing and general camp crafts including camping, cooking, pioneering and hiking. Activities were all centered on merit badge qualifications.

Troop 31 campers were divided into two, six-man patrols. Leading these patrols were Robert Byrd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bobbie Byrd of Canyon, and Brent May, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill May of Canyon. The boys were grouped into these smaller units to work on projects.

Troop members, Dan McGlasson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene McGlasson of Canyon, and Kirk Bentley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Bentley of Canyon, are employed on the summer camp staff.

Senior patrol leader was Leslie

Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louie Davis of Canyon. Eric Rathjen, son of Dr. and Mrs. Fred Rathjen of Canyon, was the assistant senior patrol leader.

"Most of the boys are taking canoeing and rowing in practice to go to Minnesota next summer to the national Boy Scout canoe basin," said Shug Bonds, Jr., Scout Master.

Awards night was held Friday night with parents and friends attending.

Among various awards to be given, three Troop 31 members were elected by other troop members along with one adult into the Order of the Arrow, a service organization. Those elected must be first class scouts and have 21 days and nights of camping with not over five days and nights of consecutive camping. Each troop selected a certain number of members to the organization according to the number of active members in the troop.

Boy Scout Troop 31 has 44 active members and a large troop committee composed of fathers of the boys.

In July, the older boys in the troop are scheduled to go to the Philmont Scout Ranch, Cimmaron, N.M. Dr. Rathjen will be in charge of this group.

Shug Bonds, Jr., 2303 N. 3rd Ave., has held the Scout Master position since September 1972. Assistant Scout Master for Troop 31 is Sheldon Johnson. Johnson has held this position for the past several years. He is a student at WTSU majoring in industrial arts.

News Brief

Rodger Mark Wilson of Canyon has received a bachelor's degree from Earlham College in Indiana.

Wilson, son of Mrs. W. R. Wilson of 2517 5th Ave., received the degree during commencement exercises recently at the Richmond, Ind., campus.

Locals Will Attend Choral Camp

Six students from Canyon will be attending the third West Texas Choral Music Camp, opening on the campus of West Texas State University June 24. Applications for the one-week camp are still being accepted.

Those students are Susan Blake of 400 7th Ave., Carla Swartzell of 415 Foster Lane, Richard Smyrl of T-Anchor Apt. #11, Russell Killingsworth of 1423 Hillcrest, Michell Kelley of Box 313, and Brenda Brooks of 408 Holman Lane.

The camp will offer the young musicians experience in mixed choir, madrigal groups, men's and women's ensembles, stage choreography, voice theory and conducting.

Dr. Lee Kjelson, nationally known choral conductor from the University of Miami, Fla., will be the guest conductor. He has done extensive publishing in both choral music and music education.

Camp directors are Dr. George Umberson, chairman of the West Texas State music department, and Dr. Hugh Sanders, assistant professor of choral music at WTSU.

The camp will have one mixed choir. This group will perform a variety of pieces and will present a concert at 4 p.m. June 30.

During the week, all students will participate in rhythm activities, sectional and choir rehearsals. Auditions will be conducted to determine the section of the mixed choir where each student will sing.

A highlight of the camp will be the student and talent night during which the students participate in talent acts or musical stunts.

During the camp, a choral conductors workshop will be offered for area directors. Graduate credit of one-semester hour may be earned by enrolling for the workshop. Kjelson will teach the class. Registration for the workshop must be completed before noon June 25.

Business Degree Program Revised At WT Water Level Down At Buffalo

A business-oriented approach to teaching business and administration courses has been developed by the West Texas State University School of Business, Dean Eldon Lewis said Saturday.

In announcing a revision of the Bachelor of Business Administration degree program, Lewis said the new curriculum should be "viable and relevant to the business world of both today and tomorrow."

The "curriculum was developed primarily to produce business and administration graduates with requisite competence and capacity to recognize and analyze a problem, to formulate the appropriate plans and strategies for meeting the problem effectively and to take the necessary actions to execute the plans."

It was the second curriculum revision made this year in a School of Business program. Earlier Lewis announced changes in the Master of Business Administration degree, making it more professional in nature.

Lewis said the new BBA curriculum also was designed to make it easier for students to transfer to the WTSU School of Business from junior or community colleges.

He said School of Business administrators visited 15 junior colleges in the region to discuss the transfer of credit to West Texas State.

"Many of these community colleges provide excellent training for admission to the bachelor's degree granting program of the School of Business," Lewis said.

"The administrators of these schools have a very positive attitude about the programs offered at WTSU."

For example, Lewis said, students transferring from Amarillo College "are able to transfer all of their work, assuming they have followed the suggestions of their advisors."

Lewis cited Dr. Norman Wallace and Don Kilmer of Amarillo College as "working closely with the dean and department heads in the School of Business to insure that Amarillo College students who wish to transfer take those courses which will readily transfer into the West Texas State programs."

The revised BBA program was divided into three levels, the dean said.

The first level is composed of courses outside the School of Business and is intended to "provide a knowledge of the arts, sciences and humanities which is a requisite of an educated person," he said.

Lewis said the second level contains "a core of business subjects which exposes the student to a common body of business knowledge" and includes "a capstone course which integrates the concepts of all the areas into a decision-making level course."

The dean added, "The third level of the program is designed to provide each student with a degree of specialized skill or knowledge in a selected area of business or administration."

"A student will select the area in which he intends to major and, with the help of an advisor, will design a program which best meets his professional and educational objectives."

Lewis said the revisions were the result of a two-year study by faculty and students of the School of Business and were initiated originally by Dr. C.C. Callarman, former dean of the school.

The new curriculum will be effective next fall. The courses will be offered in both day and evening classes, Lewis said.

"The School of Business feels this is a part of its responsibility to the Canyon-Amarillo business community," he added.

The water level in Buffalo Lake west of Canyon is continuing to shrink but manager Paul Ferguson says the lake water remains unpolluted.

Ferguson said the lake, fed primarily by rains, is beginning to show the effects of a dry spell after a heavy moisture crop during the early and middle spring.

The lake is now down to about 500 acre feet, he said.

"It's low, but the condition of the water is real fine," he said.

The last water test sample taken recently at the lake indicates that even with receding water levels, the water remains well within established guidelines.

Ferguson said the low level makes boating and skiing tough on the lake, but he noted that these activities will not be restricted.

Fishing is still good at the lake, he said, and a large crowd came last week to enjoy picnicing, camping and fishing.

Ferguson is hopeful the Panhandle skies will provide rain before mid-July to help replenish the lake. If rain is not forthcoming, he said, the lake could be severely reduced in water by August.

Even so, he sees no danger to the fish population.

Canyon School Board members will consider Tuesday night appointing a committee to work with Amarillo school board members on their proposed annexation of 11 sections of local district property.

The committee idea was introduced by local board members at a recent joint meeting with the Amarillo board.

The Amarillo district has proposed that 11 sections of land just south of the Amarillo district be annexed into the Amarillo district.

Local board members have shown little enthusiasm for the proposal.

Board members are also expected Tuesday night to consider hiring two new coaches for Canyon High School. The coaches will replace Earl Clardy and Roy Winters, who resigned recently to accept positions at Morton.

Other discussion expected Tuesday will center around the proposed construction of a vocational building on the high school campus. Board members at their most recent meeting viewed preliminary drawings for the vocational buildings.

Other items on Tuesday night's agenda are discussion of insurance policies on buildings, roof repairs, the cafeteria operations, and suits to be filed for delinquent taxes.

The board meets at 8:30 p.m. in the high school.

Entry Blanks For Meet Ready

Entry blanks for local residents who wish to enter the July 14 Borger AAU track and field meet are available from Ron Mills, athletic director of Canyon schools.

Mills said the meet is open to persons through the ages of 17. Entries may be made on blanks obtained from Mills.

Promoting Beef For Fathers Day

TEXAS BEEF LIVER WITH WINE SAUCE

By Mrs. John Toles

One pound Texas beef liver
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1/2 cup finely chopped onions
1/2 cup finely chopped celery
1/2 cups tomato juice
1/2 cups water

2 packets instant beef bouillon
1/2 teaspoon basil leaves crushed
1/2 teaspoon thyme
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon black pepper
1/3 cup apple wine

1 cup long grained rice

Combine in saucepan the tomato juice, water, beef bouillon, basil, thyme, salt and pepper. Bring to a boil and cook one minute. Rinse liver in cold water, drain on paper towel and cut into serving pieces. Heat a skillet and coat with margarine or butter. Add the liver pieces and saute on both sides. Add the onions and celery and cook to transparency. Add the hot tomato mixture. Cover and simmer about 15 minutes. Add the wine and simmer uncovered about 5 minutes, basting occasionally until liver is tender and sauce is slightly thickened. While liver is simmering cook the rice using directions on the package. Drain in a colander and keep over hot water until serving time. Place rice on a hot platter and make a nest in the center. Arrange hot liver pieces in the nest and ladle on the wine sauce. Garnish with fruit such as baked apple slices, crab apple, pineapple, spiced peaches, etc.

Canyon School Board members will consider Tuesday night appointing a committee to work with Amarillo school board members on their proposed annexation of 11 sections of local district property.

The board meets at 8:30 p.m. in the high school.

Wade Wilhelm of Canyon was one of five first place winners in the Future Farmers of America farm electrification workshop which ended recently in Amarillo. The 11th annual workshop, sponsored by Southwestern Public Service, attracted about 115 young men. All prize winners will attend a national convention in October.

Certificate Given Rapp

The official State Department of Health certificate of competency in water treatment has been awarded to Robert W. Rapp of 803 4th Ave., an employee of the City of Canyon.

Rapp underwent an intensive training course sponsored by the Texas Water Utilities Association to receive the state certification. He was taught effective ways of producing safe drinking water and treatments to make wastewater into clear streams for public use.

Several other Canyon men have also received the state certificate.

New Director Named For Student Center

A new director for the Methodist Student Center at West Texas State University has arrived in Canyon to assume his duties.

The Rev. John Wagoner replaces the Rev. Cecil Matthews, who recently retired.

The Rev. Mr. Wagoner, a native of Pampa, graduated from McMurry College in 1964 and pursued theological work at Southern Methodist University.

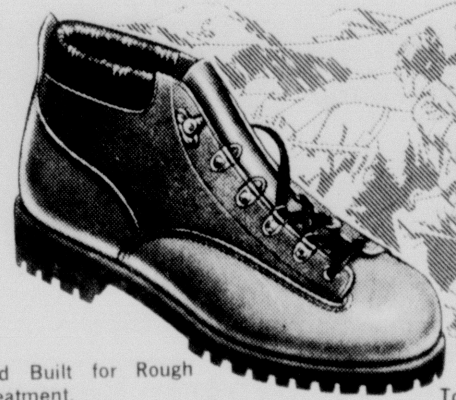

He has served as pastor of the First United Methodist Church in Big Spring and the Pioneer Memorial Chapel in Lubbock.

Welsh Drama Enthusiast To View "Texas" Saturday

Enjoying a taste of western-style pageantry a la "Texas" this Saturday night will be a young Welsh student who crossed the Atlantic recently for the express purpose of studying current trends in American theatre, both amateur and professional.

Mrs. Patricia Montrose of Llanishen, Cardiff, Wales, will see the show and talk with its directors and cast, one of many visits she will be having with theatrical personnel all over the United States.

She is the recipient of the Winston Churchill Travelling Fellowship in the Art of the Theatre, an award established in 1965 to enable talented young people "to travel abroad, widen their knowledge in their own field of activity, learn how people live and work in different parts of the world and as a result of the experience they gain, to contribute more to their profession, community and country."

Every year the fellowship council chooses a number of categories which reflect a broad cross section of life in the country, including the arts, social and public service, industry, nature, sport and adventure. Within these categories, all citizens of the United Kingdom are eligible. Academic or professional qualifications are not needed, but candidates must be able to convince the selection panel that they have the knowledge and initiative to make full use of a Fellowship, both while abroad and at home, a spokesman said.

Mrs. Montrose works in the Public Relations Department of Wales and the Marches Telecommunications Board. She was chosen by a panel of judges that included Sir Trenchard Cox, director of London's Victoria and Albert Museum, and Joyce Grenfell, popular British actress and entertainer.

Mrs. Montrose has been interested in all aspects of drama and theatre for about ten years, and for the past eight years has devoted her summers to studying the performing arts at Barry International Summer School, where she qualified as a part-time teacher of drama.

She is a founder member of the Telstars, drama group of Wales and the Marches Postal and Telecommunications Boards, and has played leading roles in most of their productions ranging from farce to tragedy.

Her three most recent appearances have been in American plays—Penelope Sycamore in the Kaufman and Hart 1930's comedy, "You Can't Take it With

You," Elizabeth Proctor in Arthur Miller's powerful drama, "The Crucible," and Karen Nash in the sparkling Neil Simon comedy, "Plaza Suite."

Her performance in "Plaza Suite" helped the Telstars win the Glamorgan Drama Cup at Caerphilly last May. The play was also selected as one of the three best of the 100 Welsh entries in the competition, and was entered in the Wales Final at Newport, Monmouthshire this month.

Since her election to the executive committee of the Glamorgan Drama League in 1971, she has been instrumental in "helping to breathe life back into the League," a spokesman said. She also edits the League's monthly News Letter which is distributed to all members of the 100 affiliated societies in the country.

She is married to Frank Montrose, a native American.

Other categories in the 1973 Churchill Fellowship include adventure, language teaching, farming and the Common Market, packaging design and disposability, participation in sport and voluntary and charitable service.

A special silver Winston Churchill Medalion is awarded to fellowship recipients on completion of their study tours. The 1973 awards will be presented by Her Majesty the Queen, a spokesman said.

All freshmen for next year that are registered in an agriculture class are invited. Members of the Canyon FFA chapter will attend the event.

500,000th Viewer Will Be Hailed At "Texas"

Directors William and Margaret Moore are breathlessly counting the days on one hand now until the moment when that big triangle rings out to beckon the crowd to the Gala Opening of Paul Green's musical drama, "Texas."

Festivities begin at 6:30 p.m. Thursday in the Pioneer Amphitheatre with a big western-style barbecue catered by Sutphen's Restaurants. Meal prices are $2.25 for adults and $1.40 for children.

Ticket sales for opening night are described by business manager Raymond Raillard as "brisk," although he said there are plenty of good seats available.

Highlighting the evening's entertainment will be the creative salute to windmills. Finalists in the show's Windmill Art Competition will display their works, and winners will be acknowledged from the stage at the show's opening.

A special prize will be given to the unknown person who happens to be the 242nd person to walk up the ramp of the theatre. He or she will be the 500,000th person to attend the production since its debut seven years ago.

Also attending the show will be its world-famous author, Paul Green, whose historical dramas of American life are featured in outdoor productions throughout the United States.

Among this season's innovations will be the addition of about $20,000 worth of new lighting equipment in the theatre. The show's magnificent sound and light effects, enhanced by the natural acoustics of Palo Duro Canyon, have been one of its chief attractions.

Costume director Charlotte Brantley reported that players will have a new look for the second act overture, as well as in other scenes. She said that the changes took considerable time as new cast members happen to wear very different sizes than the people they are replacing.

The construction crew building the new restrooms near the theatre (which the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department is responsible for) is working against time to make up for weather-caused delays at the start of the project, reported publicity director Margaret Harper.

The crew under technical director Nick Reid and stage manager Jim Meeks is repairing parts of the theatre that were damaged by the year's winter weather conditions, she said.

The show opens at 8:30 p.m., and will continue to play nightly except Sundays through Aug. 25, with a special Sunday performance on July 1.

Cast as the indomitable prairie sod buster Calvin Armstrong is West Texas State University student Travis Dean of Amarillo. Dean attended Tascosa High School, studying drama under Neil Hess. While at Tascosa, the young actor won numerous accolades in UIL state competition.

At WTSU, he has won Best Actor Awards three years in a row for his leading roles. Two years ago, he received kudos for his portrayal of the sage of Walden Pond in "The Night Thoreau Spent in Jail." Other outstanding performances were in WT Drama department productions of "Hamlet," "Psalm of Two Davids," "Antigone" and "Edwin Booth."

He made his debut in the role of Armstrong last year with several critics citing his performance as the best of any actor previously portraying Calvin.

Playing Elsie, Calvin's coy young sweetheart, will be Cindy Newman, another WTSU-trained actress from Hobbs, N.M. Miss Newman has taken many leading roles at WTSU, and has been active in every phase of theatre—including direction.

Last year, she was director of a production of "Man for All Seasons" which played to high school students attending a drama workshop on the campus.

Providing the knee-slapping comedy for the show will be "Texas" veteran of many seasons, Jerry O. Williams as the cantankerous gold prospector Tucker Yeldell, and Vicki McCormick as his "sadder but wiser" romantic sidekick, Kate Lucas.

Williams, a Canyon merchant, has had time to develop his punch lines and sight gags to a fine point since he's performed the role for five seasons. Sometimes the unpredictability of nature has contrived to change the hue of those lines, since he's had to deliver lines like "It's so dry I have to prime myself to spit" when a summer storm was abrew and its thundering overture was threatening to make the show's spectacular Panhandle storm effects redundant.

Miss McCormick, a native of Dumas, is also a WTSU graduate active both in the drama and music departments. She has taken leading roles in numerous Branding Iron Theatre shows, including a memorable one as Golde in "Fiddler on the Roof." She is currently teaching music therapy at Amarillo State Center for Human Development.

Harrell E. Floyd, WTSU graduate from Lubbock, and Jane Bivins Lipscomb of Amarillo are again cast as Uncle Henry and Aunt Anna, patriarch and matriarch of a Panhandle ranch empire. Floyd took the role over from newscaster Dean Kelly last year and a combination of acting talent and excellent makeup has made the young man effective as the irascible but venerable rancher. Mrs. Lipscomb is herself a member of one of the area's pioneering ranch families.

Also cast in lead roles are Mitch Dean Hall of Sugarland, who will portray Dave Newberry, the foreman of Uncle Henry's ranch and the third side of the show's romantic triangle. Hall is a newcomer to the show, replacing WT student Steve Hilton of Canyon, who relinquished that role for a smaller one in order to devote more time in his work toward a music degree at WT.

Cast as Calvin's father, Jesse Armstrong, is Charles Wright, WTSU biology professor. Wright took the role over in 1970. Previously, the part was played by the late Dr. C.E. Colgate who first appeared in the poignant graveside scene at the show's opening.

Assault Charge Filed On Man

A 19-year-old Amarillo man was arraigned Friday afternoon on a charge of assault with intent to rape in connection with an incident June 10.

Ricky Don Dawson of 4001 Gables in Amarillo was arrested by officers and arraigned Friday before Justice of the Peace W. A. "Bill" Wilson, who set bond at $2500.

Dawson remained in Randall County Jail Saturday in lieu of bond.

Dawson, a switchman for the Santa Fe Railway, is charged with assault in connection with a complaint filed by a 27-year-old Amarillo woman who told police a young man entered her home while she was sleeping, hit her and fled.

No Clues Yet For City Police In Assault Of Canyon Woman

Canyon police have almost no clues to the identity of the middle-aged man who stole away from a Canyon laundry Thursday during the noon hour Thursday, during with him the clothing he had forced a young Canyon woman to shed while threatening her three-year-old daughter at knife-point.

The police received a call from the woman about 12:50 p.m. When authorities arrived on the scene, the 24-year-old mother was clad in a damp blanket she had taken from one of the washing machines.

The woman told police that she and her daughter returned to the laundry after eating lunch and found a man there who apparently "looked like he was cleaning up." He then revealed a 3-inch blade and told the woman to go to the back restroom and disrobe or he would harm her child.

According to Chief of Police Al

Stewart, the man made a number of sexually suggestive statements, and told the young mother that "all he was interested in" was having sexual relations with her.

The woman told the police that the man, apparently in his late 40's, appeared to be extremely nervous. When she entered the bathroom, he pulled out several feet of telephone wire from the ceiling and tied the woman up with it. He then told her not to attempt to get out of the latrine until she had given him time to get away.

The woman disengaged herself, wrapped herself in a blanket and went to the Dairy Queen next door to phone the police. However, the telephone lines torn out by the assailant also connected to the restaurant phone.

The incident occurred between noon and 12:50 p.m. at the B & W Laundry at 23rd Street and 14th Avenue. The woman described the man as having blondish-gray hair, weighing about 175 pounds and about 5-11. The woman said she had never seen the man before.

She told police that neither she nor her daughter were physically harmed by the man.

Canyon police spent all day Thursday searching laundry facilities, trash cans and Dumpster Dumpsters in the area in an attempt to locate the woman's clothing which they believed the man might have discarded.

Stewart said that no car was seen leaving the scene, since the parking lot at that hour was filled with automobiles.

Believing the man may have been hitchhiking, Stewart went out to a roadside park outside the city and found a young man there who, upon questioning, said that he had just been at the laundry, where he saw the mother and child, as well as the alleged assailant. Stewart said the young man's description matched the one by the woman. He left before the incident occurred.

Stewart said he felt the man may have been passing through Canyon since he said it was doubtful that a local resident would attempt such a thing "in broad daylight" without taking on some kind of a disguise.

"This is the first time anything like this has ever happened in the daytime," he said. "And right during the noon lunch hour when people were coming in and out of restaurants just next door."

He said that the man may have had rape in mind, then took flight and fled, taking the woman's clothing to insure she would neither see him leave or be able to identify what kind of a vehicle he was traveling in.

"Or the man's intentions may have been entirely voyeuristic," he said. He added that in many cases of peeping tomism and sexual deviations, the offender may not even intend to assault the victim.

Absentee Voting Begins Monday

Absentee balloting on the Umbarger precinct local option election begins Monday in the county clerk's office here.

Absentee balloting ends July 3. Formal vote on the local option election, called last week by county commissioners, will be July 7 at the Umbarger school gym.

Persons must appear in person to vote absentee.

Poison Problem In Home Canning

With fruits and vegetables at their ripest and summer bringing the season of home canning to popularity, health authorities emphasize the need to take precautions against food poisoning resulting from improper canning methods, according to Home Demonstration Agent Becky Hall.

Individual cases and community outbreaks of "food poisoning" can be attributed to "three arch criminals of the germ world" known as salmonella germs, staphylococcus and botulism germs, continued a State Health Department spokesman.

"Health authorities in California reported that more than 62 per cent of all cases of botulism were due to string beans, asparagus, fruits and other vegetables canned at home. Another 24 per cent was due to the preparation of animal products," the spokesman said.

"What many people sometimes assume is a 24-hour virus is frequently an attack of salmonellosis — an infection of the intestinal tract caused by salmonella bacteria which have contaminated foods such as fresh meat, poultry, fish, eggs and dairy products," according to another spokesman.

The salmonella is carried in the intestines of humans and domestic animals, may be present in meat or dairy products, eggs or egg products. A particular strain contaminated an unchlorinated public deep water supply in Riverside, Calif., in 1966, producing a diarrhea epidemic of 15,000 cases.

In addition, the staphylococcal germ is present in contaminated milk or milk products, or of human origin. Toxin-producing staphylococci may derive from purulent discharges from finger or hand infections, nasal secretions, or apparently normal skin of hands and forearms creating the need for disposable plastic glove usage by food handlers, the health spokesman noted.

Thirdly comes botulism, caused by a deadly poison and produced by "a germ found abundantly in the soil." Botulism is a spore-forming bacteria and very resistant to normal heat and cold. The threat of botulism to home canning is that the germ can grow without air. The consumption of improperly processed home-canned foods is primarily responsible for the vast majority of botulism cases. Although the germ itself doesn't cause illness, the toxin it produces "can be fatal to man," he said.

The spokesman challenged the home canner with three questions concerning the germ botulism, followed by answers from the State Health Department.

1. Do you believe that home freezing is the best method of food preparation, and the least likely to cause the growth of germs? The pressure cooker method is safer and preferred for canning, however, precautions should be taken as to length of time and degree of temperature for preparation of any food. Studies on the heat resistance of the spores of the botulism germ prove that home canning by the cold pack method, still widely used in Texas, is extremely dangerous. All home-canned products should be boiled for at least three minutes with thorough stirring before serving.

2. Is the disagreeable odor evident with spoiled food a sure-fire indicator that the food is spoiled?

No. Factors such as acidity and nutrient value play a part in odor, therefore, canned foods could be free of obnoxious odor, appear in good condition and still be contaminated with botulism. Some important guidelines are to never use canned goods that are puffed out on the ends or spurt when opened and never taste a suspected canned food before it is cooked properly. Smelling of a contaminated food can even transfer botulism germs.

Hospital Board Meets Monday

Members of the board of the South Randall County Hospital District will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the community center to continue routine business.

Administrator Ray Grimes said Austin Architect Bill O'Connell has nothing new to report on progress of plans for the new Canyon hospital and Monday's meeting will consist of routine bill paying and discussion.

Hospital . . .

Neblett Hospital is a 30-bed unit built by the late Dr. R. A. Neblett in the late 1930s.

It is currently operated by a foundation.

The new hospital will be paid for by tax money collected from landowners throughout the hospital district.

A total of $800,000 of the hospital construction funding has been obtained already through bonds and hospital officials are eyeing either a Hill-Burton loan or other bonds for the other $800,000.

Jail . . .

"They all thought it was a joke until one or two of them tried the door to the cell and found out it was locked," said Mrs. Susan Wilson, one of the camp teachers. "Then, they quieted down."

Mrs. Wilson explained that she did not originate the idea of having the youngsters thrown into jail. She learned of such an escapade from a preacher in Plainview.

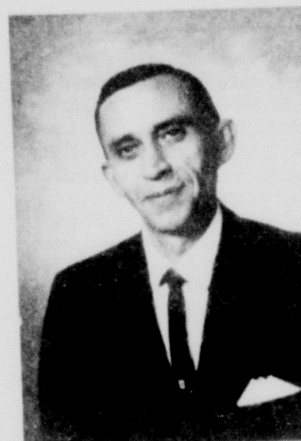

"Our theme for the day camp has been cooperation and conflict and we thought this might be the best way to show them an example of conflict," she said.

Mrs. Wilson had talked with Longest earlier in the week about staging the fake arrest.

"This just shows you how easy it is to get up here," Longest told the youngsters as he opened the door to reveal their subdued faces Thursday afternoon.

"I think all the kids were frightened," Mrs. Wilson said. "They were impressed by the situation of being locked up. One comment I heard was from a little girl. As we left the courthouse, the sheriff told her to be careful, and she called back 'Oh, I will. I don't want to ever be in there again.'"

Mrs. Wilson said the day campers discussed their jail experience Friday during a session and she feels the experience was effective in illustrating to the children a very real conflict.

allowance.

Ritchie said he does not expect a flood of applications for the fall enrollment from women. "We've never polled anyone and never surveyed," he said. "We've had inquiries through the years."

He said the ROTC corps numbered just under 100 at West Texas last fall, down significantly over the year before and years in the past.

Ritchie said preliminary approval has been gained from university officials to offer the military science course to women students.

The women students will also be expected to attend summer camps, required of all advanced level ROTC cadets.

Ritchie said he assumes the camps will be formed specifically and especially for the women cadets.

Several women students have participated in ROTC courses in recent years. The first, a recipient of an Army nursing education scholarship enrolled in basic ROTC courses in the late 1960s.

Ritchie said one woman student pursued the basic courses recently but since she will be a senior next year it will be too late for her to receive credit toward an Army commission through the campus ROTC program.

Professor of military science at WTSU is Lt. Col. John O. Childs.

Taxes . . .

Mrs. Seay's husband died 19 years ago.

When she can rent her small house, she has that money additionally to purchase groceries and medicine. But, currently, her rent house is vacant.

How does she make it? "My children will bring me some groceries some times and I get a few commodities," she said.

Mrs. Seay said the $3000 tax exemption would release at least a small amount of much-needed money to help her live.

"I'm not the only one," she declared. "If I was the only one I wouldn't say a word. But, there are so many in the same shape I'm in."

The $3000 homestead tax exemption is allowed under a constitutional amendment voted last November by Texans.

The vote passed, but the local governments have an option as to whether they will grant the exemption.

The vote also passed by a substantial margin in Randall County — 15,000 for and 5000 against.

Canyon city commissioners met with school board members on the matter several weeks ago.

It was during that meeting that Dr. Dudley Moore set the tone for the school board by declaring he believed the older residents do not need the exemption.

City commissioners were more favorably inclined toward the exemption.

City commissioners and school board members have said granting the exemption would mean a loss of almost $20,000 annually to the school district and an annual loss of about $13,000 to the city.

City Manager George Louder said Friday it will be possible for the city to grant the exemption while the school does not. Both entities use the same tax collection office and the tax records for each are computerized.

Mayor Manly Bryan said the city has plenty of time to take action on the proposal since the exemption could not go into effect for this year's taxing period.

County Judge Woody Pond said commissioners considered the exemption during one meeting and decided to table any action. No other discussion has followed.

FOOT COMFORT CAN make or break vacation fun. Vacationing usually involves additional foot activity, so comfortable shoes are a must. To get your feet in good sightseeing condition, carefully select footwear ahead of time and break them in before leaving. Also match shoes with activity undertaken. Active sports and hiking demand sturdy yet comfortable footwear. For ultimate shoe comfort try these additional suggestions:

— Try shoes with flexible soles, medium heels and well-rounded toes.
— Make sure they fit. Wear the proper shape and correct shoe size in length and width.
— Choose shoes right for the occasion—to support feet in action.
— Wear socks or hosiery one-half inch longer than your longest toe to avoid pressure.
— Change shoes, socks or hosiery at least once a day.
— Never wear the same shoes two days in succession.
Don't forget that uncomfortable feet will effect your vacation attitude, pleasure, and even your health.

CUTTING BOARDS — particularly wooden ones — provide ideal breeding grounds for bacteria. Wash board thoroughly with soap and water, then disinfect with chlorine bleach. Dry it thoroughly before storing.

SEERSUCKER BLENDS PROVIDE cool, classic looks for summer. They feature stripes, plaids, box and multi-hued patterns, and even wool-like summer tweeds.

GET THE MOST from light bulbs or fluorescent tubes — clean them. Remove them from sockets and wash with a sponge dipped in sudsy water. Then rinse, dry thoroughly and replace.

New Pastor Here Was Missionary For Bolivians

A former missionary to Bolivia, the Rev. Bill Kent, has come to Canyon as pastor of the First United Methodist Church. The Rev. Mr. Kent and his wife, Martha, came to Canyon last week following the departure of the Rev. J. Frank Peery. The new pastor served the First Methodist Church in Stratford before coming here. A native of Dallas, he graduated from Southern Methodist University in 1949 and pursued a theological education at the Vanderbilt School of Religion.

From 1951 to 1960, the Rev. Mr. Kent was a missionary in Bolivia where he served as pastor of four churches and director of a Methodist-related school.

After serving nearly 10 years in Bolivia, he moved to New York City and worked as an administrative assistant to the Latin American office of the Board of Missions of the Methodist Church.

Following his stint in New York, the Rev. Mr. Kent and his wife, who also accompanied him to Bolivia, returned to the North Texas and then the Northwest Texas Conference.

He has served churches in Abilene, Crosbyton, Amarillo and Stratford.

In 1971, the Rev. Mr. Kent went with evangelist Billy Graham on three week-long campaigns to India.

In Stratford, Mrs. Kent was a teacher in a kindergarten established for Spanish-speaking children.

Name Three Outstanding

Three Canyon junior high and high school teachers have been named outstanding secondary educators of America for 1973.

They are Denny Park, Mrs. Martha E. Posey and Mrs. Treasure Brasher.

Nominated by their principals earlier this year, they were selected for the honor on the basis of their professional and civic achievements, according to Dr. V. Gilbert Beers, director of the program.

The honor is an annual program and each year the biographies of those honored are featured in the awards volume, Outstanding Secondary Educators of America.

They are now eligible to receive the Outstanding Secondary Educator of the Year award trophy.
